But I have a plan. I'm go	ng to-do something new every week that I'm her and I'm going to say yes.
"Say yes?"
"To new things. Will a	beaps said I abort reprofif off from now experience
No this is my plan."
The officer studied my	papersock. 'You doln't fill the address section out properly. I need a zig	code."
He pushed the form h	ward not. I checked the number on the about the
I had printed out and fill	d it in with termbling fingers. I glanced to my left, where the queue at a	sy section was growing restive. At the front of the toest-queue a Chinese fan	ily was being questioned by two officials. As the woman protested, they w	ere led into a side room. I felt middenly very alone.
The immigration offic	er peered at the people waiting. And then,
abruptly, he stamped my	panpert, "Good lack, Louiss Clark," he said.
I stared at him. "That	NO"
"That's it."
I smiled. "Oh, thank y	ou' That's really kind. I mean, it's quite world
